MEMORANDUM

Date: June 5, 2012 Refer To:

To: The Commissioner

From: Inspector General

Subject: Restricted Countries: Controls over Internet Claim Applications and Payments to Beneficiaries (A-05-10-20180)

OBJECTIVE

The objective of our review was to determine whether the Social Security Administration (SSA) had established appropriate controls to (1) identify and monitor Internet Claim (iClaim) applications originating from restricted countries¹ and (2) monitor payments to beneficiaries classified as residing in restricted countries.

BACKGROUND

SSA claimants can apply online for Title II retirement and disability insurance benefits (RIB and DIB, respectively) through the iClaim application system.² In December 2008, the iClaim application replaced the Internet Social Security Benefit Application.³ In Fiscal Year (FY) 2011, SSA received approximately 2.5 million RIB applications, with approximately 1 million (41 percent) received via iClaim. Additionally, in FY 2011, SSA received approximately 3.3 million DIB applications, with approximately 1 million (33 percent) received via iClaim.⁴

² While SSA designed the iClaim applications for individuals residing in the United States and its territories, recent changes to the application have expanded its use to non-U.S. locations. We discuss this later in the report.

Individuals can live overseas and receive Title II benefits.⁵ However, Treasury prohibits sending payments to beneficiaries residing in Cuba and North Korea.⁶ SSA also has restrictions on payments to beneficiaries in Azerbaijan, Belarus, Cambodia, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Moldova, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, Uzbekistan, and Vietnam.⁷ SSA has restricted payments to these countries because it has been unable to obtain written assurance of free access to claimants/beneficiaries and vital statistics records.⁸

To receive payments while in a restricted country, eligible beneficiaries must agree to fulfill additional reporting requirements, and the payments must be approved by SSA's Office of International Programs (OIP).⁹ The Office of International Operations (OIO) is responsible for accepting, developing, adjudicating, authorizing, and reconsidering claims by persons living abroad as well as maintaining and servicing this beneficiary population.¹⁰

In October 2010, we issued an early alert to the Commissioner of SSA addressing concerns with the Agency's controls for identifying iClaims originating in foreign countries and encouraged the Agency to monitor iClaims filed from overseas locations. We also conducted a separate audit of controls over the iClaims process, which included the review of broader trends regarding iClaims.¹¹ In this review, we focused on iClaim applications originating from restricted countries as well as payments to beneficiaries in restricted countries.¹²

⁵ According to SSA's December 2011 Report on Foreign Beneficiaries (FORBES), approximately 566,670 (or 1 percent) of all Title II beneficiaries were residing outside the United States and its territories. We discuss the FORBES report later in our report.

RESULTS OF REVIEW

Our review of iClaim applications from overseas locations from November 2009 to November 2010 identified 96 applications filed from restricted countries, including 13 applications that resulted in payments to beneficiaries residing in restricted countries. Of these 13 iClaim applications, OIO processed 12 while 1 was not properly referred to OIO, which resulted in an unauthorized payment to the claimant. OIO subsequently corrected this case and, in November 2011, SSA implemented an enhanced iClaim application to capture foreign addresses. This enhanced application will assist OIO in identifying iClaim applications from restricted countries. Additionally, we found SSA lacked sufficient controls over monitoring suspended payments to beneficiaries classified as residing in foreign countries. We identified 230 beneficiaries in suspense for residing in restricted countries when they appeared to be residing in non-restricted countries at the time of our review. As a result, SSA may have inappropriately held some payments to these beneficiaries. SSA is taking actions to resolve the issues we identified in our review.

FOREIGN iCLAIM APPLICATIONS

Using the Internet Protocol (IP) addresses on incoming iClaim transactions,¹³ we found SSA processed approximately 63,000 iClaim transactions¹⁴ from locations outside of the United States and its territories from November 2009 to November 2010.¹⁵ Of these 63,000 iClaim transactions, we determined 500 related to 96 individuals who were filing from a restricted country. Our review of these 96 iClaim applications revealed 13 individuals residing in 3 restricted countries were in current payment status. OIO was aware of 12 of the 13 individuals (see Table 1).

¹³ The IP address is a unique number assigned to every device connected to the Internet. Numbers are usually assigned to Internet service providers within region-based blocks and can be used to identify the general location of the computer connected to the Internet.

¹⁴ Since one iClaim application may relate to multiple transactions, the number of iClaim applications was smaller than the number of transactions.

Table 1: Individuals Filing from Restricted Countries

Azerbaijan	1	0
Belarus	1	0
Cambodia	21	5
Georgia	1	0
Kazakhstan	4	1
Moldova	1	0
Ukraine	29	0
Vietnam	38	7
Total	96	13

Note: Of the remaining 83 applicants, SSA records indicated 1 resided in a restricted country, but payments were in suspense status. The other 82 applicants filed from SSA-restricted countries but resided in non-restricted countries.

We found that an SSA field office failed to refer one of the iClaim applications to OIO. The claim contained a domestic mailing and residence address, but the claim's remarks section indicated the claimant was living in Vietnam, a restricted country. As a result of this oversight, SSA made an unauthorized payment to the claimant. We followed up with OIO, and it contacted the beneficiary via the Foreign Service Post (FSP) in Manila, Philippines, and obtained current address information. Consequently, OIP approved the payment, and SSA modified the address on the Master Beneficiary Record (MBR) to reflect the residence address in Vietnam.¹⁶

Since we initiated our review, SSA has implemented a process that appears to be collecting sufficient information to identify iClaim applications originating overseas, including restricted countries. Effective November 2011, SSA added foreign address fields to its iClaim application allowing people who reside outside the United States to file an online application. SSA now automatically routes all iClaims from a foreign country, except Canada, to OIO. SSA will route Canadian claims to servicing field offices in the United States. We believe the inclusion of foreign mailing and residence addresses will enhance the iClaims process and help SSA properly identify and process iClaim cases from foreign locations, including restricted countries.

¹⁶ The MBR consists of information related to a beneficiary's entitlement to Title II benefits. SSA, POMS, SM 00510.002—Master Beneficiary Record (MBR) Data (October 3, 2005).

PAYMENTS HELD IN SUSPENSE

In addition to looking at foreign iClaim applications from restricted countries, we reviewed SSA's overall monitoring of payments to beneficiaries in restricted countries and identified several areas where SSA could improve controls.

FORBES

We found SSA held 181 Title II beneficiaries' payments in suspense because SSA records indicated they lived in restricted countries, while our analysis indicated the beneficiaries were not residing in restricted countries at the time of our review. SSA produces a monthly FORBES, which is a list of each foreign country where the beneficiaries reside. FORBES provides a breakdown of how many beneficiaries receive their payments by paper check, direct deposit, or the Army Post Office/Fleet Post Office facility and the amount SSA pays them each month. It also provides the counts for beneficiaries in current pay status and those in suspense. OIO managers informed us that they use the FORBES to monitor the status of payments to foreign beneficiaries.

Our examination of SSA's June 2011 FORBES disclosed that 92 individuals were in current pay status and residing in restricted countries.¹⁷ We also found 383 Title II beneficiary payments suspended for residing in a restricted country. SSA coded all 383 records with an "SL" on the MBR.¹⁸ While 202 of these suspended cases related to restricted countries,¹⁹ we found 181 (47 percent) of the 383 Title II beneficiaries were in countries or territories that were not currently either Treasury- or SSA-restricted (see Table 2).

¹⁷ See Appendix G for a list of beneficiaries in current and suspended pay while residing in restricted countries. The FORBES list also contained 170 beneficiaries in current pay under the category "Invalid Geographic Code." It was unclear if any of these beneficiaries are in a restricted country. In discussions with Agency officials, we learned that actions are being taken to identify where the beneficiaries reside.

¹⁸ The Ledger Account File (LAF) code SL on the MBR indicates payments are in suspense for being in a restricted country. SSA, POMS, HI 01005.806—LAF (Ledger Account File) Codes (March 15, 1999).

Further analysis disclosed that 164 (91 percent) of the 181 Title II beneficiaries remained in suspense for being in a restricted country even though the Treasury or SSA had removed these countries from its restricted country list between 14 and 48 years earlier (see Table 3). According to SSA staff, the remaining 17 suspended Title II beneficiaries resided in countries or territories that were never on Treasury's or SSA's restricted country list.²⁰

²⁰ These countries or territories were Australia, Hong Kong, Macao, Palau, Philippines, Taiwan, and Thailand.

Note 2: In 1993, Czechoslovakia became two separate countries: the Czech Republic and Slovakia.

Note 3: East and West Germany became one country, Germany, in 1990.

Source: OIP.

OIP staff explained that it was likely that SSA suspended payments to the 181 beneficiaries years ago when they were residing in Treasury restricted countries. According to OIP, it might have occurred when the beneficiaries filed their claims or after they became entitled to SSA benefits. For example, at the time a claim was filed, a beneficiary may have provided a residence address in a restricted country or reported a change of address from the U.S. to a restricted country. Beneficiaries are required to report a change of address. OIP indicated that SSA did not continue contacting beneficiaries who remained in LAF code SL in these former restricted countries. However, if beneficiaries reported a change of address to a non-restricted country, they should have been re-contacted by SSA.

OIP believed that when Treasury removed the restrictions, SSA followed procedures²¹ and identified all potentially eligible persons in that country, making attempts to contact them by letter, through U.S. Embassy personnel or local media.²² However, OIP indicated that if a beneficiary did not contact SSA, the benefits would have remained suspended to prevent SSA from inadvertently releasing payments without proper documentation of eligibility (that is, current citizenship, current country of residence, and determination on past-due and current benefits). Furthermore, OIP indicated that the burden to show continued eligibility after suspension essentially falls on the beneficiary.

²¹ For example, see SSA, POMS, RS 02650.142—Resumption of Payments to Beneficiaries in Armenia (April 3, 1997).

²² OIP noted that when the countries were removed from Treasury's restricted list (see Table 3 above), SSA's process for resuming payments to beneficiaries was primarily manual. Procedures called for Agency staff to contact the beneficiaries, inform them that SSA could now make payments in those countries, and ask them to notify the nearest U.S. FSP.

According to OIP, SSA does not have procedures in place to monitor beneficiaries whose benefits remain in suspended pay status for being in a restricted country, even if for extended periods. As a result, SSA may have underpaid a number of these beneficiaries. Even if the beneficiary is deceased, relatives who are auxiliaries or survivors may still be entitled to payments.²³ According to SSA policy, claims for underpayments due deceased beneficiaries can be large since SSA has no restriction on the accrual of benefits to U.S. citizens and nationals.²⁴

During our review, we learned that SSA took actions to resolve 1 of the 181 records we identified. SSA issued a $3,366 underpayment to a retired 66-year-old man who resided in China, a non-SSA-restricted country. OIP will need to work with the FSPs to determine whether any of the remaining suspended beneficiaries are still alive and review the cases identified in this report to help ensure a proper resolution. To prevent future occurrences, OIP will also need to enhance procedures to timely resolve suspended benefits related to countries no longer restricted by Treasury or SSA.

MBR Indicates Domestic Address in the United States

We found SSA held 49 Title II beneficiaries' payments in suspense for living in a restricted country, while the addresses on the MBR indicated the beneficiaries lived in the United States. These individuals were not listed among the suspended beneficiaries in foreign countries on FORBES. We noticed that some of the MBR records included a special message that the beneficiary was either visiting or residing in a restricted country. During our discussions with OIP management, we learned that there could have been various underlying causes for these anomalies, depending on the case. For example, staff may have used the wrong suspense code, staff may have failed to use the Left the U.S./Outside U.S. Screen,²⁵ or a systems limitation may have existed. OIP indicated there were no controls in place to validate the restricted country if Agency employees input LAF code SL into SSA's computer system for a non-restricted country. OIP staff also noted that the MBR lacked a field for the beneficiary's residence address. Unlike the Supplemental Security Record, which has separate fields for the beneficiary's mailing and residence addresses, the MBR only has a field for the beneficiary's mailing address. The lack of this field can complicate determinations about a beneficiary's residence.

²³ In examining additional data, 171 of the 181 records, or approximately 94 percent, represented beneficiaries age 90 or older. In our June 2011 audit, the Agency agreed with our recommendation to implement controls to identify beneficiaries in suspense for 7 or more years, and ensure these beneficiaries are terminated for presumption of death in a timely manner. See SSA, OIG, Aged Beneficiaries Whose Benefits Have Been Suspended for Address or Whereabouts Unknown (A-09-09-29117), June 2011.

²⁴ For example, see SSA, POMS, RS 02650.148—Claims for Underpayments Due Deceased Beneficiaries in Armenia (April 3, 1997).

OIO and OIP were unaware of these 49 cases because they show a U.S. address.²⁶ As noted earlier, OIO and OIP did not have jurisdiction of U.S. cases, only foreign cases. SSA will need to determine whether these beneficiaries are living in the United States or a restricted country. To the extent any of these beneficiaries are living in restricted countries, OIO will need to properly monitor and service these beneficiaries.

As we noted with the earlier cases, SSA will need to determine the whereabouts of these suspended beneficiaries and whether the Agency underpaid any of the beneficiaries or their auxiliaries and survivors. To date, SSA has taken actions to correct 5 of the 49 records and has issued underpayments totaling $18,312. For example, SSA issued an underpayment for $3,345 to a 69-year-old man who resided in Washington State with his 4-year-old son, an auxiliary on his record. SSA had underpaid both the father and son.

CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

SSA's enhanced iClaim application that captures foreign addresses should assist OIO in identifying iClaim applications from restricted countries. However, SSA will need to improve its controls related to suspended payments for individuals residing in restricted countries. SSA had already initiated actions to investigate suspended payments identified during our review.

To improve oversight of beneficiaries residing in restricted countries, we recommend SSA:

1. Enhance the existing process to timely identify and resolve suspended benefits related to countries no longer restricted by Treasury or SSA.
2. Determine what additional steps may be necessary to ensure that LAF code SL is only used for restricted countries.

²⁵ SSA field office staff use this screen to document the date a beneficiary left the United States, was outside the United States, or returned to the United States. See SSA, POMS, RS 02610.024 A.4—Field Office (FO)/Program Service Center (PSC) Actions upon Receipt of Proof of Presence in the U.S. (October 31, 2011).

²⁶ We found that 13 (approximately 27 percent) of the 49 records represented beneficiaries age 90 or older.

3. Complete the review of the cases identified in this report for a proper disposition.

AGENCY COMMENTS

SSA agreed with our recommendations (see Appendix H). The Agency also provided technical comments, which we incorporated, as appropriate.

The Government of Armenia assures the Government of the United States that the United States Social Security Administration (SSA) and representatives of the United States Department of State (acting for SSA) may:

- A. Communicate freely by mail and personal contact with individuals in Armenia on matters relating to United States Social Security benefits; and

Beneficiary Restricted Country Conditions

Each eligible beneficiary must agree to the following conditions to receive benefits while in a Social Security Administration (SSA) restricted country.

- He/she must appear personally at the Foreign Service Post (FSP) each month. At that time, proof of identity must be submitted. If the beneficiary's benefits are paid by check, the check will be delivered at this time. The check will not be given to anyone acting on his/her behalf nor will it be mailed.
- If the beneficiary does not appear in person, the check will be returned to the Treasury Department. If he/she is paid by direct deposit, the FSP will notify SSA promptly and SSA will stop his/her benefits. Payments will not be resumed until he/she visits the FSP and establishes his/her continuing eligibility for benefits. Payment will be made for past months if the beneficiary establishes eligibility for them.
- He/she will not be paid through a representative payee. Benefits will be suspended if the beneficiary becomes unable to manage his/her own affairs.
- The beneficiary must notify the FSP promptly of any change in his/her citizenship and any change of address.
- The beneficiary's family must notify the FSP if he/she becomes incapacitated or dies.¹

Scope and Methodology

To accomplish our objective, we:

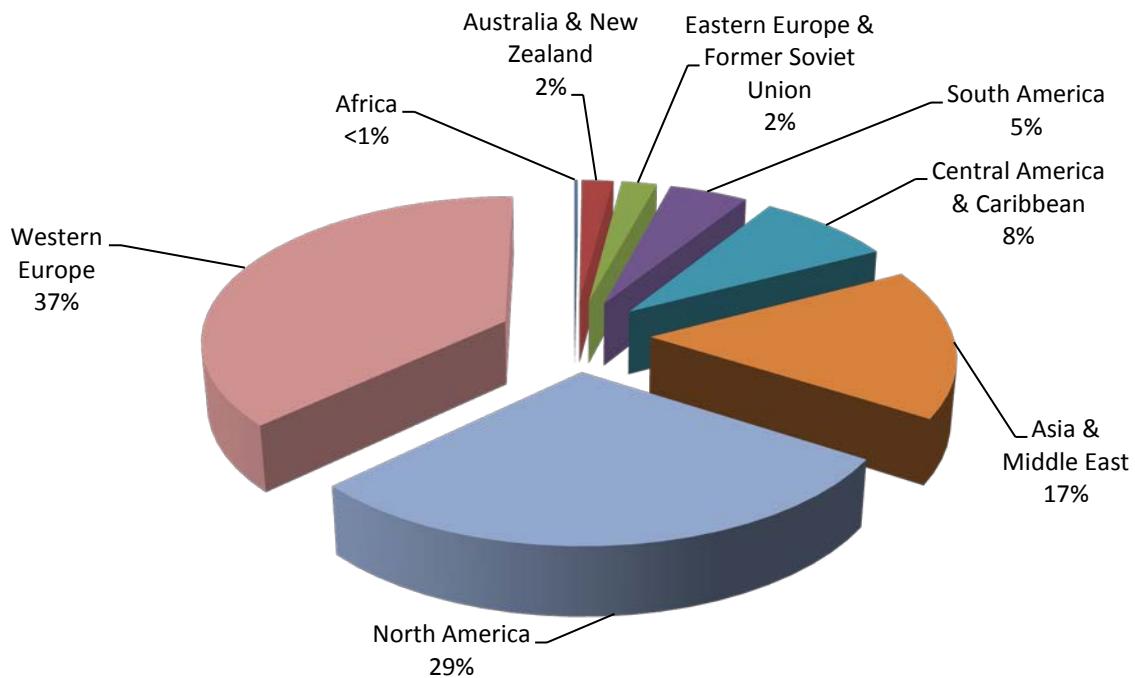

- Reviewed pertinent sections of Federal laws, regulations, and the Social Security Administration's (SSA) policies and procedures.
- Reviewed prior Office of the Inspector General reports.
- Obtained and verified Internet Protocol addresses on Internet Claim (iClaim) transactions originating in restricted countries and reviewed pertinent iClaim applications from November 2009 to November 2010.
- Interviewed management and staff in the Offices of International Programs, International Operations (in Central Operations), and Electronic Services to obtain information about each component's role related to processing and monitoring iClaim applications from and payments to restricted countries.
- Analyzed and compiled data from the June 2011 Report on Foreign Beneficiaries (FORBES) to determine the number beneficiaries who had their payments suspended for being in restricted country and examined additional information reported for these beneficiaries.

We conducted the audit from June through November 2011 in Baltimore, Maryland, and Chicago, Illinois. We relied on the representations of Agency personnel indicating the FORBES data reported for the beneficiaries were complete and accurate. We determined that the iClaim data used in the report is sufficiently reliable and believe that the evidence obtained provides a reasonable basis for our findings and conclusions based on our audit objectives. The entities audited were the Deputy Commissioner for Operations and the Associate Commissioner for International Programs. We conducted our work in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain sufficient, appropriate evidence to provide a reasonable basis for our findings and conclusions based on our audit objective. We believe the evidence obtained provides a reasonable basis for our findings and conclusions based on our audit objective.

Internet Claim Transactions from Outside the United States

Using the Internet Protocol (IP) addresses on incoming Internet Claim (iClaim) transactions,¹ we found the Social Security Administration processed approximately 63,000 iClaim transactions from locations outside of the United States and its territories, from November 2009 to November 2010. We provide the location of these IP addresses in Figure F-1.

Figure F-1: Country of Origin for iClaim Transactions Using IP Addresses (November 2009 to November 2010)

Note: North America includes Canada and Mexico.

¹ The IP address is a unique number assigned to every device connected to the public internet. Numbers are usually assigned to internet service providers within region-based blocks, which can be used to identify the general location of the computer connected to the internet.

Overview of the Office of the Inspector General

The Office of the Inspector General (OIG) is comprised of an Office of Audit (OA), Office of Investigations (OI), Office of the Counsel to the Inspector General (OCIG), Office of External Relations (OER), and Office of Technology and Resource Management (OTRM). To ensure compliance with policies and procedures, internal controls, and professional standards, the OIG also has a comprehensive Professional Responsibility and Quality Assurance program.

Office of Audit

OA conducts financial and performance audits of the Social Security Administration's (SSA) programs and operations and makes recommendations to ensure program objectives are achieved effectively and efficiently. Financial audits assess whether SSA's financial statements fairly present SSA's financial position, results of operations, and cash flow. Performance audits review the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of SSA's programs and operations. OA also conducts short-term management reviews and program evaluations on issues of concern to SSA, Congress, and the general public.

Office of Investigations

OI conducts investigations related to fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement in SSA programs and operations.
